

WELCOME TO CHURCH OF THE ASCENSION

Twelfth Sunday after Pentecost : 12 August A.D. 2018

Dear sisters and brothers in Christ,

This morning, I sat at my desk in my home office looking out the windows into the leafy domain of our small garden. I had checked the weather report to find that the long walks Peter and I so look forward to with Stella, our shaggy, poodle mix puppy, would be curtailed by heat and humidity. She likes the air conditioning on high heat index days just as we do. So, we'll do a few brief chases around the garden and play tug inside and, perhaps, get in a late evening walk.

The heavy July rains we have had for the last two summers have the quality of South Pacific monsoons. The garden is looking pretty good, but there is a lightly beaten down look of the flower garden and the soil even after a day without rain has a strangely dry quality. It makes me uneasy. To compound that unease, the height of the Potomac River is close to surging over its banks and is looking muddy from being so thoroughly stirred by the rains. It seems a bit ominous. Reading the newspapers brings about a similar sense of unease and a similar desire to be sheltered from the unpleasantness just as I wish to stay in the my conditioned office. Yet, as we know, there is no real shelter from the issues of climate change or of the world's troubles by staying inside and by not reading the newspapers.

It helps us to notice the lovely things around us. I've had more than my share lately: my Zurich family's long visit a week ago; my uncle's 100th birthday; our foreign adventurer daughter who with her family managed to get home before the Lombok earthquake; the improvements in Peter's 96 year old father's health; Sunday evening's sighting of a doe and her fawns grazing along Rock Creek; and the bunny rabbits hopping to and fro in the late evening when we are finally out late walking Stella. Reassuring as well are the images of gentle domesticity revealed in the the mellow lights shimmering from the houses of our dear neighbors and the casual and relaxed friendliness of other neighbors out for late night walks. Julian Norwich comes to mind. Her famous line "All will be well and every kind of thing will be well" has always calmed me when my spirit is troubled.

When Julian wrote these words, England was in a period of plague- a third of the population was dying. Yet, she dared to say these words. We, too, must cling to these words not only to comfort us but to remind us that we as Christians have a very important role in partnering with Christ to fulfill these words. Fulfillment of her prophecy is made when humanity accepts Christ's charge to be his hands and feet in the world. St. Francis' Prayer teaches us how this is done.

"Lord, make us instruments of your peace. Where there is hatred, let us sow love; where there is injury, pardon; where there is discord, union; where there is doubt, faith; where there is despair, hope; where there is darkness, light; where there is sadness, joy. Grant that we may not so much seek to be consoled as to console; to be understood as to understand; to be loved as to love. For it is in giving that we receive; it is pardoning that we are pardoned; and it is in dying that we are born to eternal life." Amen.

Blessings,
Nan+

The lists of supplies are available in the narthex. You are not obligated to provide all of the supplies on the list. All donations are welcome. If you would like to make a financial donation, please make the check payable to the church and write "For Backpacks" on the memo line. Please put the check in the plate on Sunday. Please put the supplies in Room 2 On Sunday, August 26, the backpacks will be assembled in Room 2 following the 10 am service. All help will be appreciated. We can work together while we visit and get to know each other. Thank you in advance for your support of this project.

Our greatest need is for volunteers to visit patients. These volunteers provide companionship for patients, respite for family members, lavender oil hand massages, music by the bedside or help with practical matters. Many provide the gift of "presence" by simply being with a patient. All volunteers go through an application
